Talk To Iran

Tell Congress You Want Direct Dialogue, Not War with Iran

The drums are beating for war with Iran. Administration sources are feeding the media with scenarios of “pinpoint” military strikes in August against Iranian Revolutionary Guard bases or a massive bombing campaign in November against Iranian nuclear facilities. We at FCNL don’t know if the United States would launch a preemptive military strike against Iran. But the dangerous climate created by war rhetoric in the United States and in Iran could lead to an inadvertent war.

Threats of military attacks and regime change, while refusing to talk with Iran without preconditions are only heightening tensions. The best way to avoid war is to talk to Iran. Former Secretaries of State Colin Powell, Henry Kissinger, James Baker III, Warren Christopher and Madeleine Albright have all called on the United States government to expand the diplomatic dialogue with Iran.

War with Iran would bring disastrous consequences:

- The entire Middle East likely would descend into violent conflict
- U.S. standing in the world would plummet and oil prices would soar.
- A U.S. attack would produce a strong backlash strengthening hardliners in Iran.

Call your Senators Toll Free (until June 17): 1-800-788-9372

- Tell them to work for direct, unconditional, and comprehensive talks between the U.S. and Iran;
- Urge them to cosponsor S.2130 calling for a “diplomatic surge” in the Middle East;
- The U.S. pursued negotiations with North Korea and Libya—it’s time to talk with Iran.

Tell Congress that you want dialogue not war!
